there is an ever present demand for mosques in american cities to accommodate the more than 8 percent of the american population that are muslims the majority of which are american born muslims or american converts however muslim american communities have implemented the same architectural vocabulary of mosques seen in the middle east into their american neighborhoods nevertheless this architectural transplantation from the middle east to america does not come without problems the weaving of middle eastern architectural culture with an american application of islam which is prominent within modern american society gives rise to internal tensions felt within the community in particular to the issue of muslim women s place in community mosques through the numerous case studies and investigations of the american mosques that i documented it is clear that the community does not provide adequate spaces for their women members my thesis explores the process of modifying and developing a new architectural vocabulary for the american mosques within the confinements and boundaries in islam in particular creating an adequate space for women a lack of attention to the needs of american muslim women in the states has caused a gender conflict over the adequacy of spaces for muslim women within american mosques for example in the 2006 controversial documentary titled the mosque of morgantown 1 located in west virginia a significant dilemma was created dividing the muslim community residing in the united states the mosque of morgantown set the social precedent for some muslim women to question some of the religious rulings regarding prayers and set the tone for numerous other protests of which the most recent occurred at the islamic center of washington dc in early part of 2010 the islamic center of washington d c 2 had an outburst of escalating tensions between genders thirty washington d c women united in protest and refused to pray in the basement of the mosque which was their designated area of worship instead they decided to attend prayers under the same roof as the men during worship this seemingly simple act of protest was frowned upon the imam of the mosque declared that the allocated rows were for men only the presence of women in the rows resulted in the delay of the obligatory friday prayer that is mandatory for men in islam through these incidences it is clear that an investigation of a new architectural expression within the confinement of the religion for women driven spaces needs to be conducted this is a study of chinese hui muslim women s historic and unrelenting spiritual educational political and gendered drive for an institutional presence in islamic worship and leadership a mosque of one s own as a unique feature of chinese muslim culture the authors place the historical origin of women s segregated religious institutions in the chinese islamic diaspora s fight for survival and in their crucial contribution to the cause of ethnic religious minority identity and solidarity against the presentation of complex historical developments of women s own site of worship and learning the authors open out to contemporary problems of sexual politics within the wider society of socialist china and beyond to the history of islam in all its cultural diversity in this ethnographic examination of women s mosques in the maldives anthropologist jacqueline h fewkes probes how the existence of these separate buildings where women lead prayers for other women intersect with larger questions about gender space and global muslim communities bringing together ethnographic insight with historical accounts this volume develops an understanding of the particular religious and cultural trends in the maldives that have given rise to these unique socio religious institutions as fewkes considers women s spaces in the maldives as a practice apart from contemporary global islamic customs she interrogates the intersections between local national and transnational communities in the development of islamic spaces linking together the role of nations in the formation of muslim social spaces with transnational conceptualizations of islamic gendered spaces using the maldivian women s mosque as a starting point this book addresses the roles of both the nation and the global muslim ummah in locating gendered spaces within discourses about gender and islam juxtaposing muslim scholars debates over women s attendance in mosques with historical descriptions of women s activities within middle eastern and north african mosques marion holmes katz shows how over the centuries legal scholars arguments have often reacted to rather than dictated muslim women s behavior tracing sunni legal positions on women in mosques from the second century of the islamic calendar to the modern period katz connects shifts in scholarly terminology and argumentation to changing constructions of gender over time assumptions about women s changing behavior through the lifecycle gave way to a global preoccupation with sexual temptation which then became the central rationale for limits on women s mosque access at the same time travel narratives biographical dictionaries and religious polemics suggest that women s usage of mosque space often diverged in both timing and content from the ritual models constructed by scholars katz demonstrates both the concrete social and political implications of islamic legal discourse and the autonomy of women s mosque based activities she also examines women s mosque access as a trope in western travelers narratives and the evolving significance of women s mosque attendance among different islamic currents in the twentieth century why do we not see muslim women heading to a mosque for prayers on fridays why don t they participate in funeral prayers in the indian subcontinent men and women pray at al masjid al haram in mecca they pray in al masjid al nabavi in medina why cannot they pray in their neighbourhood mosques in india islam does not discriminate between men and women the quran promises as much reward for a roza fast a hajj or an act of charity for a woman as a man at nearly 60 places it asks both men and women to establish prayer as opposed to merely offering prayer establishing prayer scholars agree is done through congregation men do it by praying in mosques but what about women they are denied the right to enter mosques across the indian subcontinent women in masjid a quest for justice aims to give voice to those women who have been denied their due by our patriarchal society it tells the reader that prophet muhammad clearly permitted women to enter a mosque it is a permission well respected in mosques across west asia europe and america yet in an overwhelming majority of mosques across india women are virtually barred from entry no explicit ban just a tacit one drawing its arguments from the quran and hadiths the book exposes the hypocrisy of men who deny women their right to pray in mosques in the name of religion thus revealing entrenched patriarchal beliefs masquerading as faith it also tells the stories of those brave women who are fighting for their space in mosques across the world from nizamuddin and haji ali dargah to mosques in lanes and bylanes of india the fight is on women in masjid is all about righting a historical wrong
